

CULTURAL LEADERSHIP

FIRST NATIONS CULTURAL LEADERSHIP PROGRAM

CULTURAL LEADERSHIP

Cultural Leadership can also be referred to as 'Servant Leadership' in that the leader is there to serve and elevate others in the group or community. In this program we decolonise the western hierarchical models of leadership, by building awareness of the strength of cultural leadership. And how First Nations people can utilise their cultural understanding to support their journey as a leader and mentor. This model of leadership places communities and groups at the core of its decision making. It cares about the whole rather than the individual.

ELEMENTS OF CULTURAL LEADERSHIP

In our sessions we unpack the elements of cultural leadership to enable participants to recognise their own leadership journey; by acknowledging the important role that each element or process plays in building First Nations cultural leadership knowing, doing and being.

- Deep Listening
- Self-Reflection
- Journey (foresight)
- Yarning
- Community/ our mob
- Cultural Knowledge
- Healing
- Ceremony

WHAT YOU WILL GET OUT OF THESE SESSIONS

The sessions will support you to build your own strengths as a cultural leader and mentor. It will allow you to unpack some misconceptions to leadership roles and thinking around effective & empowered leadership forms. What you will get out of these sessions include:

- The foundations of Cultural Leadership - knowing that you already have cultural leadership understanding, so how do you use that to build your capacity as a leader and mentor.
- Cultural Leadership vs Western Leadership forms - A yarn up on the western leadership hierarchy vs the circular community leadership model, looking at both strengths and weakness.
- Impacts of lateral violence to community leadership - how to start the conversation of lateral violence in community and its impact to individual and community growth.
- Ensuring cultural safety is at the core of cultural leadership, to strengthen community.
- Healing in community leadership - building an understanding that cultural leadership is also about coming from a place of healing, the sharing of stories and holding ceremony.
